Words, Ideas, and Thinkers

Marie Arana

---

Marie Arana is a prizewinning author, critic, and former Literary Director of the Library of Congress. Her most recent book is “Silver, Sword, and Stone,” a sweeping history of Latin America, chosen by the American Library Association as the top nonfiction book of the year. Among her other books are: the National Book Award Finalist “American Chica,” the novels “Cellophane” and “Lima Nights,” and the biography “Bolívar: American Liberator,” winner of the Los Angeles Times Book Prize. She has been the winner of an American Academy of Arts & Letters Award for Literature (2020), a former executive at two major publishing houses, a judge for the National Book Awards and the Pulitzer Prizes, a visiting columnist for the New York Times and, for many years, editor in chief of Book World at the Washington Post. She is also a member of the Board of Directors of the Authors Guild Foundation, PEN America, PEN Faulkner, and the American Writers Museum; a governor of Northwestern University's Libraries; and Vice President of the 150-year-old Literary Society of Washington.
